

Guests on Kaleidoscope 6 and 9 May 2020

Sharon Grigoryan

Sharon Grigoryan is the cellist in the Australian String Quartet on Kaleidoscope. On Kaleidoscope this week she talks about the ways the Quartet is managing the time of isolation. They have programmed the Australian Anthology Project which features works by contemporary Australian composers, including Paul Stanhope, Anne Cawrse and William Barton. The music, recorded in earlier concerts, will continue to be posted on line over a period of time as new ones are added, and you can access them through the ASQ website: asq.com.au. There are some surprises amongst them!

The ASQ is also making plans for the future when they can again perform for a live audience . Still in the schedule are concerts in October including one at Ukaria. But there may be opportunities before that month for a full online recital at Elder Hall, or recitals for smaller groups in various venues.

Next week: Oliver Fartach-Naini, guitarist and recording artist.

Kaleidoscope: Wednesday at 6.00pm: repeated Saturday 11.00am
